ALLEGED BRIBERY TRIALS IN DETROIT

Detroit, Mich., June 30.—Trials in the so-called aldermanic boodle cases in which nine members of the Detroit board of aldermen are under indictment, are scheduled to begin this week. The cases have been pending since last July, when the accused aldermen were indicted and arrested on charges of accepting bribes and conspiracy to accept a bribe for their votes and influence in the passing of a measure affecting city property transferred to the Wabash railroad.

Rumors of graft among the aldermen had been in circulation or a long time before the exposure came. As a result of these rumors Mayor William B. Thompson sought the services of detectives and Andrew N. Green, a prominent manufacturer, agreed to finance the problem. After the investigation was begun, the Wabash railroad applied for the closing of a street on the grounds that it wanted to erect a warehouse and otherwise increase its shipping facilities. The application was held up in council for a time. Then suddenly the council granted the application by vote of several members who had previously opposed the measure.

Meanwhile a Burns detective, who represented himself to be land agent for the railroad, had been at work. He had entered, according to the charges, into negotiations with the secretary of the common council committee. Eventually it was decided, it is alleged, that several who had been opposing the street measure would withdraw their opposition for $100 each. Some of the aldermen, however, are said to have held out for more.

The first of the accused aldermen to be placed on trial is Thomas Glinnan, president of the council and alleged to be the boss of the hoodlums. Glinnan is known as "Honest Tom." He has long been prominent in Detroit politics and at the time the charges were made against him he was mentioned as a possible candidate for mayor.

Sanderson Succeeds Ismay.

London, June 30.—The resignation of J. Bruce Ismay as president of the International Mercantile Marine Company, sometimes known as the "American shipping trust," became effective today. Mr. Ismay is succeeded by Harold Sanderson, who has been associated with the company since its formation. The company controls the White Star, Red Star, Atlantic Transport, and the Dominion and American lines.

NEGRO KILLS ANOTHER

SONNY CRUMLEY SHOT AND KILLED BY JACK PETERS SATURDAY NIGHT.

Saturday night Sonny Crumley, a negro bootlegger, was shot and killed by Jack Peters, another negro well known in this section. The tragedy took place in an abandoned house on Nelse Clark's place about two miles west of Ada. Crumley was shot in the left cheek with a gun of small caliber and was killed instantly.

The trouble is said to have started from a card or crap game in which several negroes participated, perhaps helped along with a mixture of bad liquor.

Sheriff Mitchell and County Attorney Roland arrived on the scene at 12:15 but not a negro was to be seen anywhere. Lying near the body was a 38-calibre gun and in the pockets a bottle of whiskey and $6.25 in money. They spent the night on trail of Peters and Sunday Mr. Roland and Deputy Sheriff R. E. Duncan, kept up the pursuit, but the hunted negro was evidently well hidden in the brush. About 1 o'clock this morning a phone message said that he would come in this afternoon or night and surrender.

MORE LOBBY EXPOSURES

MANY PROMINENT NAMES INVOLVED IN LATEST REVELATIONS AT WASHINGTON.

Washington, June 29.—Political Washington is shaken by an amazing exposure in the New York World today of the bold lobby which the National Association of Manufacturers has maintained in this country for the past ten years.

While this particular lobby was probably not in the mind of President Wilson when he made his attack on the tariff lobby, the exposure apparently was inspired and clearly was made timely by President Wilson's warning to the country against insidious and powerful lobbying in the National capital.

According to current gossip in news paper circles, the New York paper paid $10,000 for the Mulhall exposure together with the telegrams and letters he was able to deliver, and the statement is made that the paper will publish sensational daily installments of that correspondence. There are said to be 20,000 messages of all kinds and they involve nearly all of the old type Republican leaders who shone powerful in the days of Cannonism.

If you Value Your Eyesight, see An Expert Optometrist I have spent 20 years preparing myself to perfect the refraction of the eye. My modern equipment, based by this long experience is your guarantee of satisfaction. A. D. COON, Ramsey's Drug Store, Ada, Okla.

In fact, the exposure strikes at the very heart of the repudiated Cannon regime, embracing the late Vice President Sherman, ex-Representative James G. Watson of Indiana, Messrs. Dalzell of Pennsylvania, Littlefield of Maine and nearly every high and mighty of the Cannon machine. A few democrats are mentioned in connection with the activities of the manufacturers' lobby, but in the main the exposure furnishes the specifications of the democratic and progressive republican accusations against Cannonism and lends a belated significance to the personnel and the actions of the republican National machine that defeated Roosevelt at Chicago and drove the progressive element of the party into a new organization under the banner of Roosevelt. The exposure lends a peculiar emphasis to the recent declarations by Roosevelt, Murdock and other Progressive party leaders against amalgamation with what is left of a proud party under a leadership of such men as are involved in this latest lobby exposure.

Tonight public men who are mentioned in the Mulhall correspondence are explaining published letters, denying charges or pointing out inaccuracies in the matter of names and dates in the exposure. But it is already apparent that the matter will not be permitted to remain one solely of newspaper enterprise and newspaper warfare, but will be made the subject of government investigation. In fact, Senator Overman, chairman of the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee, said today that Mulhall already had been summoned to appear before the senate lobby committee, and indicated that in his belief Mulhall's astonishing tale of systematic "influencing" of Senators and members, the financing of the companions of statesmen who were friendly and the financing of campaigns against those who were hostile to the National Association of Manufacturers, by that organization, would be gone into in every ramification. If this is done, the work of the lobby committee will probably extend unto the very end of the session of Congress.

The legislature has at last passed a congressional redistricting bill which is believed will meet the approval of the governor. It provides one republican and seven democratic districts. At the last moment Congressman Carter was placed in a district made up of counties in his old district, instead of being thrown in with Thompson and Weaver. However, with both of the last named in the same district the fur will fly at the next primary. Pontotoc is placed in Bill Murray's district.

COOLER WEATHER MAY BE EXPECTED THIS WEEK

Washington, June 30.—An end is in sight to the hot wave that has held sway over the Central States for several days. In its weekly bulletin tonight the Weather Bureau predicted that the extreme heat would be broken in the plains states Monday or Tuesday, and that a cool wave then would move slowly eastward. The forecast says:

"The distribution of atmospheric pressure over the North American continent and the adjacent oceans is such as to indicate a break in the hot wave over the plains states Monday and Tuesday and the Mississippi Valley and the upper lake region Tuesday or Wednesday, followed by moderate temperatures in these districts during several days.

"East of the Mississippi river warm weather will prevail during the first half of the coming week, followed by moderate temperatures after Wednesday or Thursday. Over the Rocky Mountain region and on the Pacific Slope temperatures will average below the normal.

"The rainfall during the week will be generally light and local. A disturbance that now covers the plains states will advance slowly eastward, attended by local thunder showers, and cross the great central valleys about Tuesday and the Eastern States Thursday."

NO MORE LAND SUITS

REPORT FROM WASHINGTON SAYS SENATOR LANE HAS SO DECIDED.

(By Oliver O. Kuhn.)

Washington, D. C., June 30.—Like the sun piercing lowering clouds, comes the announcement from Secretary Lane of the Department of Interior that the government is not anticipating further suits in connection with the sale of inherited lands in the eastern section of the state. It was announced several days ago, in conjunction with a brief filed with the attorney general McReynolds by Representative Joe B. Thompson, that litigation involving fifteen thousand transactions would soon be started. The mere intimation that fifteen thousand cases were to be added to the more than twenty thousand now pending, created considerable excitement in the state, inasmuch as the cases already on the docket have done much to demoralize land values by clouding titles.

It was declared a few weeks ago that the secretary of interior would contest his right to approve all sales of transfer, notwithstanding the fact that an act of congress of May 1908, specifically places this jurisdiction in the hands of the court handling probate matters.

Secretary Lane denies that he had any such intention and that field agents in Oklahoma have ever been instructed to collect data as evidence in the alleged suits contemplated. He declares that all disputes arising over the sale of inherited lands will be settled amicably without recourse to court action, unless this is deemed absolutely necessary. This only further bears out previous predictions that as Secretary Lane was in sympathy with the trials and tribulations of the state brought upon it by federal action, he would do everything within his power to alleviate conditions.

Through evident misunderstanding of departmental regulations governing the payment of debts of the Kiowa and Comanche Indians, departmental agents now in southwestern Oklahoma have caused a mighty protest to be registered against their work in Washington. Congress at its last session set aside $250,000 of the Indians' moneys for the liquidation of their obligations and this with funds from the sale of lands and from leases would give each Indian in the neighborhood of $100 to be immediately applied on his indebtedness under the supervision of the agents in charge. Creditors declare that these agents refuse to pay one cent until the creditors release the Indian in full from his obligation, even though the Indian may confess to obligations of several hundred dollars, more than that set aside to him for payment. W. S. Ferguson of Mountain View, president of the Indian Creditor's Association has been in Washington and department officials have assured him that conditions will be changed.

YOU NEED THE WORK: WE NEED THE MONEY—Patronize us. Your moneys worth in clean towels sharp razors, good workmanship. DICK WILLIAMS' Barber Shop.

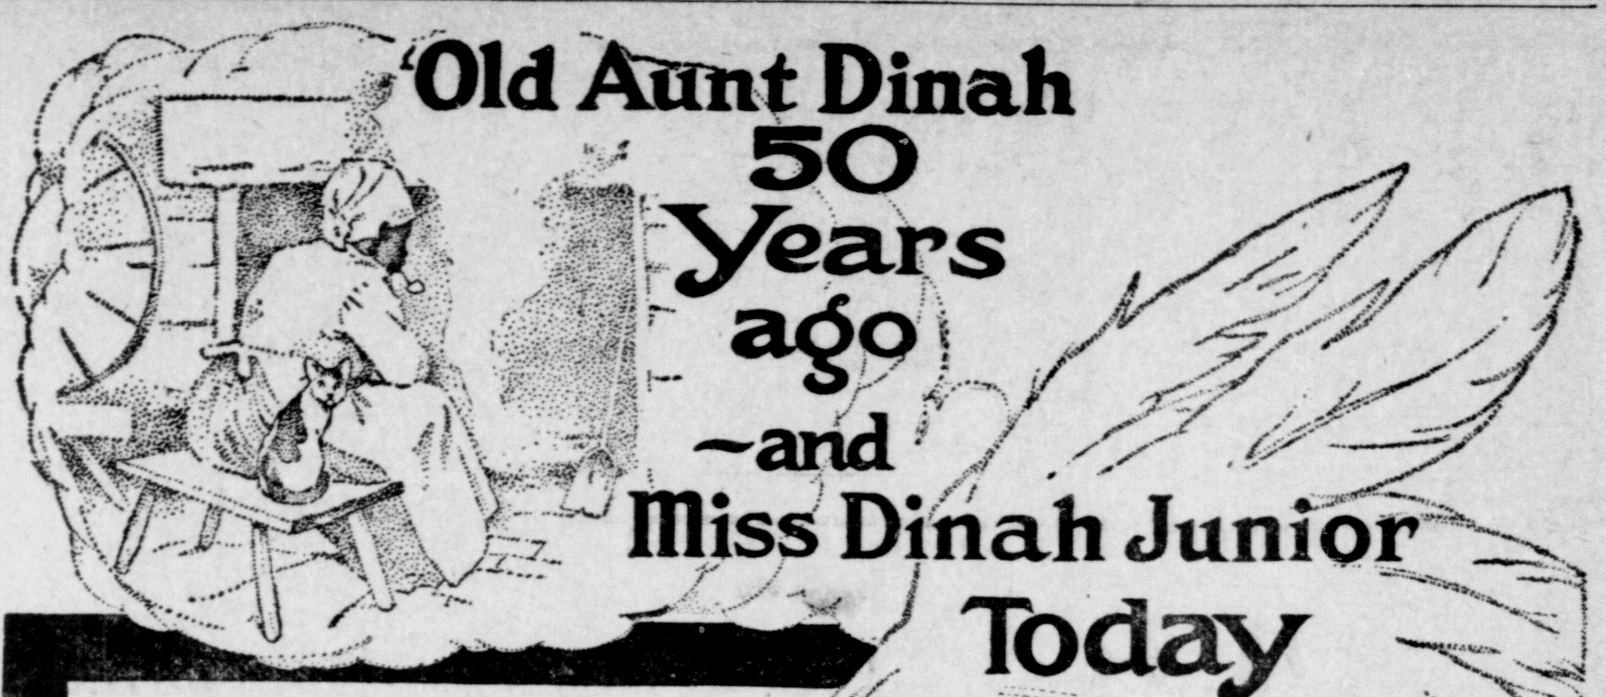

Senator Gore is pushing the measure which provides that the secretary of interior shall deposit in the banks of the state the $21,000,000 of Indian money in the hands of the United States treasury which is accredited to the tribes of Oklahoma.

With rates of interest high and money scarce this would be not only a boon to the financial institutions of the state but the thousands of farmers who have been practically unable to get money at any price to tide them over the years of drought.

Secretary Lane, is expected to give his approval to such a proposition and Secretary McAdoo likewise will endorse the move, it is believed, although neither of these officials have made public statements on the matter. Efforts will be made this session of congress but its immediate fate is in doubt.

Notwithstanding that it would be greatly to Oklahoma's interest to have many measures pushed through Congress at the present session it is practically certain that no legislation other than the tariff, currency reform and such appropriation bills as were held over from last session, will be acted upon. This was the general agreement before the session was called and it is expected to be carried out.

Such measures as those providing for per capita payments, and general litigation affecting the various tribes of the state will have to rest

COTTON CROP

STILL PROMISING

(By J. B. Turner)

Memphis, Tenn., June 28.—Another favorable week has carried cotton somewhat further along toward maturity. Temperatures have been high stimulating rapid growth where the plant into a more thrifty condition supply of moisture was sufficient and aiding greatly everywhere in putting tion.

There is some need for rain in Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Arkansas, Louisiana and at points in Georgia and in Texas, although in the latter two states the need is generally slight. As yet no deterioration is reported from lack of moisture anywhere, but in the states named, plant growth is deficient and since the soil is dry rain would greatly stimulate growth.

Cultivation remains most excellent and it appears that rain alone is needed to boost the crop very rapidly. In the Carolinas cultivation made good progress during the week and there is now little fear of grass, but some of the cotton is still unthrifty and there is considerable irregularity as to size the most of it being small.

Blooms are not yet numerous except in the most southern parts of the belt and in northern districts are not expected before July 1st to 5th though the cotton is beginning to set "squares" well.

Boll weevils have appeared over a wide area in Texas, but in small numbers and are slightly less numerous in Mississippi than one week ago.

Oklahoma—No change in splendid prospects. Blooms becoming general in early cotton. Plant as rule not big and few localities trifle dry.

Texas—Cotton did well during week and with warm weather is beginning to make better growth than heretofore in north and central counties, while south fruiting is well under way. Crop however is not quite so well advanced as at this time last year. Central counties need rain. Boll weevils have appeared over wide area being noted numerous at Long View and as far west as Cisco and Brownwood in small numbers.

Maurice Costello Tells of World Tour.

"The finest sight of the entire trip," remarked Maurice Costello, talking over the tour of the Vitagraph "Globe Trotters," who have just returned from their travels, "was the skyscrapers of New York as I saw them coming up the bay on the way home. I saw no place else that gave such a thrill of pleasure. Many a time, when I have been dining in semi-state in one of the big hotels of India, China and Japan, my mind has wandered back to Manhattan, and I have thought longingly of the buckwheat and beans that I could get at Childs."

He had a lot to say regarding the natives of these various countries visited during the tour. The Chinese were very superstitious regarding the moving picture camera, and it was with the utmost difficulty that any of them were persuaded to pass before it and as to posing them, well it was almost impossible. On one occasion when some men had been hired in advance, they had absolutely refused to pass in front of the machine. It was not until after they had been threatened with dire penalties and perils by some officers of police that they would fulfill their bargain.

The Japanese were vastly different. It was a puzzle to keep them away from the pictures. The Japs knew what was going on and one and all wished to appear upon the screen.—New York Clipper, June 25th.

That is a large per centage of the entire amount assessed in the county and if the O. C. should pass into the hands of a stronger company and be improved as it would be, its share would amount to considerable more. Furthermore, this amendment would mean the building of more roads through this section and a corresponding increase of taxes from this source and lightening of the burden on the other tax payers. Surely it is good business for every voter in the county to throw his influence for the amendment. Certainly no one is benefited by the present status of affairs.

DRILLING FOR OIL NEAR STONEWALL

Real developments have begun in time the machinery has been laid on this vicinity for oil. In about a month the ground, the rig built, and the Algonquin Oil Co., of Stonewall, Ok., has begun drilling, although at the time of going to press they have not gone to any great depth as they have just begun.

There is not a man who knows anything of the indication of the ground for oil and have visited the section where they are drilling who have the least doubt but what oil will be found in good, paying quantities, as the indications are identical with that of the biggest oil field of Oklahoma, and even those who are not in the oil business but have given the question some thought are satisfied that the oil will be found with but little trouble. Considerable enthusiasm is being shown by every one in this community and some of Stonewall's prominent citizens are closely connected with the enterprise. It is also reported that they will begin drilling for oil in the near future between Stonewall and Clarita.—Stonewall News.

PART OF BURGLAR'S LOOT LOCATED

Saturday afternoon a man living near Ahloso was observed with a knife which was recognized as being like some taken from R. E. Haynes' hardware store some weeks ago when it was entered by burglars. On being questioned he stated that it had been given him by Grover Gaar and that he had bought a shot gun from him. County Attorney Roland, Sheriff Mitchell and Deputy Duncan made a trip to his house and brought the gun back. A comparison of the secret number on the gun with an invoice showed it to be one of the lot stolen. The federal authorities in charge of the Muskogee jail where Gaar is serving a sentence of six months, were notified to hold him when his term expired until an officer from Pontotoc county could take him in custody for a full examination of the case.

No suspicion attaches to the man who bought the gun.

REVIVAL AT SECOND BAPTIST CHURCH

The revival meeting at the Second Baptist church continues to grow in interest and the sermons of Rev. Guy by their force and appealing nature continue to draw large crowds. His power of illustration is unexcelled.

Although it is not usual to see a very large congregation at Monday morning services, the one of this morning was a striking exception to the rule. The subject was "Things Paul Prayed for at Ephesus." The sermon was of unusual force and interest.

The preacher has promised a sermon tonight on the "Perverseness of Man." It will be one of the greatest of the meeting and the church renews its pressing invitation to all to attend the meeting. A treat awaits those who come tonight.

THE BOY AND THE FARM.

(W. D. Little in Farm & Ranch.)

When will the attitude of the American people toward the farmer change and the farmer be given, or rather take, the place, of a right, ought to occupy in our private and public life? When will the young men of the rural districts stop leaving the farm for the towns and cities? These questions have been asked ever since the United States has been a free nation, and up till very recent times no solution has occurred to these perplexing problems. Now, however, the solution is in sight. The farm, in my opinion, is the future of the ambitious youth; and the farmer after long years of waiting and working, is to be acknowledged one of the leaders in our political and religious thought.

My reasons for such a belief are manifold. Among the first is that farming is coming to be considered as a business, just as much a business as that of law, of medicine, of dentistry. The time has been, and most of us can remember that time, when the average farmer looked forward to making a professional man of his son or setting him up in some business. Farming was considered the occupation of the illiterate or the unfortunate. This sentiment happily is fast changing. In fact, it has already changed.

The people as a whole are learning that their fathers really knew very little about farming. They are learning that farming is a science, and they are studying this science in order that they may reap magnificent harvests. They are using improved farm machinery; they are sub-soiling; they are beginning to do in the farming line what men of intellect have done with iron, with oil, with thousands of other things in which money has been made. Man is learning that nature is his friend and he is letting her help him. He, like Burbank with his magic wand, is stretching forth an entreating hand to nature, is meeting her half way, and he is being abundantly rewarded for his pains.

Politically, also, the farmer is coming into his own. In the early history of our country, the landed aristocracy had absolute control of political matters in the South. After the war, when the cotton mills and other manufacturing enterprises began to come South and many people began to flock to the towns and cities, the farmers let the political scepter slip from their grasp. The pendulum is now beginning to swing back to its original place. Free mail delivery, daily, weekly and monthly newspapers with cheap subscription prices, magazines—all these will help the farmer in the future to keep in just as close contact with the government and the government machinery as his brother in the city.

Then the farm journals not only keep the readers informed along practical lines, but along political and financial lines as well. And the farmers are reading these farm journals, too. I can hardly go into country home in this part of Oklahoma but that I see my old familiar friend, Farm and Ranch, lying in a conspicuous place.

Then, again, the educational facilities in the rural districts are improving daily. I well remember, and that has been only a few years ago, when my father had to leave the country and move to a small town in order to educate his children. This is not the case to any great degree now, and it will not be the case at all in a short time. In Oklahoma and Texas and all the other Southern states schools are being built in every community, which will prove a blessing. And, too, the people are building these schools themselves without encour-

How to Avoid Those Pains and Distress Which so Many Mothers Have Suffered.

It is a pity more women do not know of Mother's Friend. Here is a remedy that softens the muscles, enables them to expand without any strain upon the ligaments and enables women to go through maternity without pain, nausea, morning sickness or any of the dreaded symptoms so familiar to many mothers. There is no foolish diet to harass the mind. The thoughts do not dwell upon pain and suffering, for all such are avoided. Thousands of women no longer resign themselves to the thought that sickness and distress are natural. They know better, for in Mother's Friend they have found a wonderful, penetrating remedy to banish all those dreaded experiences. It is a subject every woman should be familiar with, and even though she may not require such a remedy, she will now and then meet some prospective mother to whom a word in time about Mother's Friend will come as a wonderful blessing. This famous remedy is sold by all druggists, and is only $1.00 a bottle. It is for external use only, and is really worth its weight in gold. Write to-day to the Bradford Regulator Co., 127 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a most valuable book.

agement from outside sources. One of the very best high schools in the state of Oklahoma is a consolidated country school.

Why has the boy been leaving the farm for the towns and cities? Plainly it is because there has not been enough of the rush and excitement of life to keep him on the farm. The lure of the electric lights, the rushing business-like air, the paved streets, all these have aided in taking him away from "the cool sequestered vale of life." Will this continue? It cannot.

The automobile, a thing that is becoming common on many farms, will now give the rush and daring that the boy so well likes and, in fact, almost has to have. The pike roads will supplant the paved streets. The community libraries that will soon be established in all up-to-date rural sections will furnish him plenty of reading matter. He will know what is going on in the cities, and the improved farm machinery and the automobile will afford him time to take part in it. He will be able to see some good dramas, to enjoy fine music, to visit magnificent art galleries. These things are coming; and, when they do come, Johnny will be content to remain on the farm and enjoy the "land of his fathers."

The American boy is so constituted that he wants to take part in everything that is going on around him. He wants to be an actor in that great public and business drama that is being played behind the footlights of the world stage. Heretofore it has been impossible for him to do this and remain on the "paternal acres." With modern civilization, however, with its improvements, its inventions, its fast rush life, conditions are changing. No longer is it impossible for the boy of the farm to do a hard day's work, run 10 or 15 miles to the city, spend a few hours there, and then be back at home by bed time.

Then, could not that old saying of Horace Greeley's, "I believe it was, 'Go West, young man, go West'" be changed to read, "Go to the farm, young man, go to the farm?"

The Daughter of David Kerr

By Harry Tootle

Illustrations by Ray Walters

(Copyright, 1913, by A. C. McClurg & Co.)

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Gloria Kerr, a motherless girl who has spent most of her life at school, arrives at her father's home in Belmont. David Kerr is the political boss of the town and is anxious to prevent his daughter's learning of his real character.

CHAPTER II—Kendall, representing the Chicago packers, is negotiating with Judge Gilbert, Kerr's chief adviser, for a valuable franchise. They fear the opposition of Joe Wright, editor of the reform paper.

CHAPTER III—Kerr asks the assistance of Judge Gilbert in introducing Gloria to Belmont society and promises to help him put through the packers' franchise and let him have all the graft.

CHAPTER IV—Gloria meets Joe Wright at the Gilberts. It appears they are on intimate terms, having met previously in a touring party in Europe.

CHAPTER V—Gloria twists Wright on his failure to keep an engagement to meet her in Paris. He explains that the death of his mother prevented his going to Paris.

CHAPTER VI—The Gilberts invite Gloria to stay with them pending the furnishing of the Kerr home.

CHAPTER VII—One society bud who refused to meet Gloria is forced to do so when her father is made to feel Kerr's power.

CHAPTER VIII—Wright begins his fight against the proposed franchise in the columns of his paper, the Belmont News.

CHAPTER IX—Kerr, through his henchmen, exerts every influence to hamper Wright in the publication of his paper.

CHAPTER X—Gloria realizes she is not being received by the best society and is unhappy. She takes up settlement work.

CHAPTER XI—Kerr and his lieutenants decide to buy Kerr's paper and ask the editor to meet them at Gilbert's office.

CHAPTER XII—Wright in his desire to keep from Gloria knowledge of her father's position, avoids her during the fight. Gloria is piqued.

CHAPTER XIII—Calling at Gilbert's office to solicit a donation Gloria meets Wright. He proposes and is accepted while waiting to be called into the conference.

CHAPTER XIV—Wright refuses to sell his paper and declares he will fight to a finish.

CHAPTER XV—The Belmont News appears with a bitter attack on Kerr. Gloria calls Wright a coward and refuses to listen to any explanation from him.

CHAPTER XVI—Broken-hearted, Gloria decides to plunge more deeply into settlement work.

CHAPTER XVII—She calls on a sick girl of the underworld named Ella.

CHAPTER XVIII—She learns for the first time that her father is the head of a notorious gang of political grafters.

CHAPTER XIX—Sounds of a conflict are heard in the room over Ella's. Gloria finds Wright unconscious, a victim of an attempted assassination by thugs in the pay of the political ring. She hides him in Ella's room and defies the thugs.

CHAPTER XX—She awes them by announcing that she is Kerr's daughter. Ella threatens to give up Wright to the thugs and is choked into unconsciousness by Gloria, who then falls unconscious on Wright's body.

CHAPTER XXI—They are rescued by Dr. Hayes and his wife. Wright is taken to a hospital and Gloria is taken to the Hayes home. Wright decides to sell his paper and leave Belmont.

Wright picked up the picture and gazed at it intently. He was sacrificing all for her. Was the sacrifice worth while? The question would have been an idle one. He loved her, had never loved anyone else and never would love anyone else. No sacrifice was too great which would mean any increased happiness for her. The sound of some one being brought to his rooms by Patty caused him to put the picture hastily face downward on the table. The door opened to admit Dr. Hayes.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Wright," he exclaimed cordially as he came forward with hand outstretched. "I hope you'll let an opponent drop in to congratulate you on winning the election."

The editor's face lit up with pleasure as they clasped hands.

"Thank you, old man. It's awfully good of you to stop by before I started on a little vacation. The News won its fight; but of course we can't expect this to be the end of the contest, can we?"

The coroner shook his head dolefully.

"Don't ask me. I've ceased to be a political prophet. Do you think it'll be a boy, doc? they ask. 'I don't know,' says I, shaking my head solemnly. 'I'm going to get that wise about politics. I don't prophesy anything now until after it happens. But I never thought I'd live to see the day that Belmont would go against us. I'm out of politics.'"

Wright smiled. "Isn't that what they all say—the day after?"

"It's the truth this time. My wife has done nothing but read the riot act to me for the last two days."

"I imagine Mrs. Hayes is a purist in politics."

"Well, I can't blame her," the doctor admitted. "She's been poking around down in the river wards, and that surely was a raw frame-up they handed you. She got onto it, and she's head sore."

Wright had discussed the affair with Dr. Norton and had also told Arthur Morrison what little he knew. This was the first intimation coming from the ring that they even knew of the occurrence. The newspaper man was curious to know the ring version of it. Dr. Hayes' remark afforded him the opportunity to approach the matter cautiously.

"What was Mrs. Hayes' connection with that—ah—little episode?" he asked. "I gathered from Dr. Norton that in some way or other she knew something about it."

Dr. Hayes stared at him in amazement. Miss Kerr had never uttered a word, yet he readily believed, as did the others, that both Wright and she were the only ones who could tell the story. The woman in whose room they had been found was still in a delirious condition at the city hospital and nothing could be learned from her. Although Kerr had ordered the police to bring in Ryan and Kelly, the search had been unsuccessful.

"What!" gasped Dr. Hayes, "don't you know how you got out of that mess and why the thugs didn't finish you?"

Wright shook his head. His visitor's manner puzzled him.

"I don't know a thing. I think some one helped me in some way or other, but Dr. Norton claimed he knew nothing."

"Well, I'll be darned!"

"Don't; there's no occasion for it now—you're out of politics. The first thing I knew was when I heard Dr. Norton say, 'He's coming to, all right.'"

Soon Hayes picked up his hat to go. He stood for an instant, as if inviting Wright to speak. As he did not do so, the visitor asked, thinking of Gloria the while:

"Is there anything you want to know, now that you're going on a vacation, or would you like me to deliver any—messages?"

"No, none." Then after a pause, "It is better so."

"Well, I'm off," remarked the doctor. He spoke carelessly, to hide his regret, for at heart he keenly sympathized with the man who was making so strong a fight for a principle that love itself had to give way before it.

Then he added, apparently as an afterthought, "By the way, I believe that offer for your paper still holds good."

Wright laughed, the little world-weary laugh he had sometimes permitted himself since he and Gloria had parted in Judge Gilbert's office.

"My vacation has started," he answered, "and I'm not talking business. But you can tell Judge Gilbert for me that the Belmont News is not on the market for his clients."

"All right, I'll tell him," Hayes replied as they shook hands. "Here's good luck to you on your vacation."

Wright smiled grimly, the thought that good luck would perch upon his standard was a sorry hope. He refused to bind himself to the truth with any fleeting consolation such as that.

CHAPTER XXII.

The morning after the election, Gloria called for the Banner as soon as she awakened. The headlines told her at once that her father had been defeated. She searched carefully through the paper for some reference to Joe Wright, but no mention was made of him. Naturally enough, the Banner was not in a jubilant mood. It predicted dire things in store for Belmont, but Gloria, remembering what she had learned at so bitter a cost, felt that any change must be for the better.

"That Surely Was a Raw Frame-Up They Handed You."

The girl had now recovered from the first severity of the shock, and was anxious to know for a certainty what had become of Wright. She knew that he lived and was not seriously injured, else there would have been some mention of him in the paper. The day previous she had thought much of him, but there had been much else for her to think of. Now with a return to what was to be for her the normal, she wanted to know how he fared.

All the morning Gloria spent in revolving in her mind just what she ought to do. She knew that her father meant Wright harm. Pride and maidenly reserve wrestled with what she considered her duty. Her conscience told her that before she left Belmont forever she should warn this man who once had loved her. He must be placed on his guard against her own father. It cut her like a knife to think that the attack on the editor had really been made at her command. Now she could do no less than tell him how affairs stood.

Dr. Hayes could scarcely conceal his surprise when Gloria followed him into the hall after luncheon and asked about Mr. Wright's condition. He told her that he still kept to his room, but was reported as improving. Before he could frame a question, Gloria thanked him and fled up the stairs. About three o'clock she emerged from her room, dressed for the street, and announced to Mrs. Hayes that she was going for a short walk alone.

What the daughter of David Kerr told her hostess was the truth. She did go for a short walk, a walk that took her in the most direct way to the house where Joe Wright resided. The door was opened for her by a little girl who invited her to enter.

"I wish to see Mr. Wright," Gloria explained to the child.

"I'll take you to his sitting-room. He told me to bring anybody in that came to see him, and to tell 'em he'd be back in a minute."

All was silence in the room when the little girl threw wide the door and bade her enter.

"Then he's not in the house, you say?"

"No, he's gone to get a baggageman, but he said to wait," Patty insisted.

"Whom did he wish to wait?"

"Oh, anybody. He said somebody's coming to pack his books. He hurt himself and can't bend over the box."

"Oh!" cried Gloria, with a little gasp of pain. She remembered all too well the hurt of which he complained. Then at the same time came a new thought, why was he packing his books? A more critical look showed her many evidences that he was giving up his apartment. She could not understand. "Is Mr. Wright moving everything?" she ventured.

"Yes, he's going away."

Gloria gazed at the child in surprise, not quite grasping what she said. A smothered exclamation caused her to look up quickly. There, staring at her from the doorway in honest amazement, stood Joe Wright. She felt her cheeks crimson.

"Miss Kerr! You here!" he gasped, before he could master his surprise. Then in an instant he went on in an even, conventional tone, "I beg your pardon, I scarcely expected to find you here."

"No, I—I—I scarcely expected to find myself here, but here I am." As she said this she extended her hands, then dropped them, a gesture which seemed to typify the simplicity with which the visit had been accomplished.

Wright readily recognized that there was some motive in the call, and dismissed Patty with instructions to let him know if anyone asked for him.

"Won't you sit down?" he begged, remembering his duty as host.

"Thank you, I haven't a moment to stay."

Wright looked about for a chair, to find them filled with odds and ends of things intended to be packed. The girl insisted that she preferred to stand, and listened to his apology for the appearance of the room and the explanation that he was moving.

"I learned at luncheon that you were going away," she acknowledged. "Since you would not come to see me, I had to come to see you."

Again his amazement equaled that the sight of her in his living room had occasioned. He permitted it to betray itself by exclaiming:

"Since I wouldn't come to see you! Surely, Miss Kerr, you didn't expect that? There was nothing whatever equivocal about my dismissal."

This was something she had not planned, a reference to the past. She wished merely to warn him and then take leave of him forever.

"I didn't come with a desire to refer to that," she answered. "You must realize that what I have to say seems to me of the utmost importance, else I—oh, you can't know the effort it has cost me to come here."

"I'm sorry if your dislike is so intense."

She shook her head, with a smile that was only a sad lighting up of her countenance, like the last flare of an expiring flame.
